October 2011

Fall is Here & the Holidays are just around the corner!

The weather is finally getting cooler...the breeze is blowing more & we can again enjoy the great patios that many of our local restaurants offer! Halloween decorations are starting to show up in your neighbor's yard & pretty soon, little goblins, pirates & princesses will be showing up at your door for candy! October is the month when all of the Holiday Madness starts... Many people think that they are supposed to wait for Spring before they put their home on the market... Well, now is actually an incredible time to list. Mortgage rates are at all time lows & many are jumping into the buying market to take advantage of them. If you plan to buy when your home sells, YOU get to take advantage of the low rates as well! There also tends to be less homes on the market during the fall & winter months, so competition is lower. It just makes perfect sense!
